To Decide Our Future

The campaign is almost over. In a few more days we will make our decision.

It is more than just another campaign, more than just another election.

We are going to set the course for our future. We are going to decide whether to plunge this country into the chasm of despair which has claimed the lost nations in history, or whether America is too young to start dying.

We believe Thomas E. Dewey will give us a kind of political leadership that will deny the processes of decadence which have been at work here under Mr. Roosevelt's government.

We believe that kind of government and the tired-out philosophies it has experimented with should be repudiated.

America must believe in its future to have a future worth believing in. The military victory we are gaining will be empty if it brings nothing but the chaos, cynicism and violence which carried the nations of the old world into another war.

Our men are fighting—we are fighting—for the ideals of America, not the devious doctrines of the revolutionaries who made Italy, Germany, Spain and France what they are today.

America has learned to be tolerant. We do not seek to make over the world in our image. But neither do we seek to be made over in some other image. It is high time we served notice to that effect.

We like America the way we have dreamed of making it since 1775, not the way plotters in our midst, trained in old world scheming and blood-letting, have dreamed of making it since 1933—not the way their victims innocently prattle of making it, either.

This is still the New World. We need to reaffirm the Monroe doctrine, which closed the American continents to the meddling of Old World politics.

We need to understand what George Washington meant after the War of the Revolution had been won when he said in his Farewell Address: "The great rule of conduct for us in regard to foreign nations . . . is to have as little POLITICAL connection with them as possible."

Most of all, we need to see through the quibbles and quarrels being inflicted on us to divert our minds from American principles and the needs of American security.

Our principles have been the best hope of all the betrayed peoples of the earth since the Declaration of Independence. The harassed millions who came here to find a better way of living have left a heritage that we must not hold cheaply.

Once more the old world is reaching this way a gluesy snare of doctrine. The War of the Revolution to sever "political connection" between the old and the new world apparently must be fought again on a front of ideological warfare. If that is the way it must be, let us realize what we are called on to do and then do it decisively.

Respect for what we have built in America is not isolation. That is only one of the snares we are dealing with in the heat of a campaign. America will work with all nations which honestly want peace on a basis of mutual respect. But we will not practice appeasement. We are not called upon to sacrifice our principles. Peace might come too high, as a confused British government learned at Munich.

The words used in the campaign have concealed as often as they have revealed facts—and there are still more words to come.

But through the welter runs one slender, bright thread of truth.

It is Gov. Dewey's repetition of the theme that it is time for a change.

Mr. Roosevelt's reply that everything is all right the way it is—JUST TRUST ME TO DECIDE EVERYTHING—is the denial of truth.

Everything is not all right, the way it is. All Americans know that.

We must come out of this war with fortified resolution to make things better. The American tradition of continuous progress must not die on the vine. America's vitality must not be sacrificed to the tired schemes of men who have lost hope.

There is something greater in store for us than premature decadence for lack of vision, or lack of energy to convert vision into reality.

Surely, there is something better for us than the sly adoption of discredited ideas that brought disillusionment and revolution to Italy, Germany, Spain and Russia.

We do not believe Gov. Dewey has the answer to everything, but we do believe he is looking in the direction where the right answers will be found—the American direction.

He is looking at the New World's future, not the Old World's past.

His election would be an inspiration to others who are looking ahead. One man, one government, one group of Americans cannot make the American future; we must all believe in it and work for it. Politics is only the means, never the end, of our progress.

Confidence In Communiques

Announcement by Admiral Nimitz of Japanese losses in the major naval battle of the Philippines follows by only a few days an equally confident Japanese communique on a previous battle fought off Formosa.

Americans must remember that the Japanese, knowing nothing of the later battle, are still celebrating what they were told was a decisive victory. When news of the battle of the Philippines filters back to Japan, it will seem strange that a fleet supposedly annihilated could score such damage only a few days later.

Japan's confidence in navy communiques will be irreparably damaged. As the result of our own navy department's forthrightness, particularly since expansion of its resources did away with the early necessity of concealing weaknesses, American confidence in the navy's word is at its peak. If it were otherwise, Admiral Nimitz's estimate of 58 out of 60 ships sunk or damaged—with 24 sunk—would be too fantastic to be creditable.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, November 2

THERE MAY be prospects of the ultimate fulfillment of major and much cherished goals, in which affiliations with large corporations, diplomatic, political or fraternal bodies, may involve secret agreements or other intriguing factors. Persistent effort and shrewd analysis of peculiar or irregular situations may be necessary to place the affairs and fortunes on a sound, enduring and lucrative basis. There may be temptations to make radical changes, with prospects of more influential associations, yet these may be beset with hazard and curious or unorthodox phases. The romantic or family life also seems involved in this strange predicament. So "stop, look and listen before deciding."

Those whose birthday it is while being confronted by a year of most alluring and lucrative prospects, in which advanced position, increased profits and influential associations seem in sight, yet there may be a peculiar, subtle and intriguing undercurrent to make the whole situation perilous to peace, progress and family happiness unless particularly sagacious and shrewd tactics be employed. In a bid for sudden and perhaps spectacular change in which public relations are at stake, it may take keen analysis, deep insight as to underlying factors, sustained by persistent and confident application, and along well-systematized lines, with far reaching plans, to eventually place matters on solid foundations. The spading-up might also affect family or romantic affairs adversely. Ponder carefully before decisions.

A child born on this day should have much creative ability and ingenuity with fine intuitions and inner urges, yet may be activated by its emotions or sensational lures, to its detriment. Shrewd analysis and logic are recommended for ultimate success and happiness.

A Better Buzz Bomb

It is an accident that production of American prototypes of Germany's buzz bombs has been announced by the War department. This is one story about war production the Germans and Japanese are supposed to read from beginning to end. If it is too late to use American-made buzz bombs against Germany, they will be used against Japan.

This is to be the story of the bomber all over again—the bomber with which Germany hoped to master the world. But German bombers weren't good enough. The United States finally produced the best bombers, just as the United States will now do its best to produce the best buzz bombs. What American ingenuity is able to do with that idea may have a lot more bearing on international security between now and the year 2000 than all the paper plans that could be originated in half a century of continuous negotiations at Dumbarton Oaks.

The big jump in marriage licenses indicates that this year's peach crop was not a failure.

We could keep it a more cheerful world if we'd all remember to forget our troubles in front of others.

Love at first sight sometimes turns out as foolish as divorce at first sight.

GUARDING YOUR HEALTH

The Advance In Civilian Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
ONE OF THE greatest of victories in the present war has not made the headlines to any extent. It has been a quiet battle, conducted behind the lines by an army of unassuming heroes who never get decorated but continuously and unrelentingly and with great intelligence and all the resources of modern science conducted the campaign for public health for the civilian population.

It appears to have come as a surprise to publicists and newspaper editorial writers whenever the news from this campaign did reach status to be worthy of a column or two of new print, that the health of the general population has been even better during the war than it was in some of the piping times of peace. It is true that we have had a worse epidemic of infantile paralysis this year than we had for many years, but that is because we simply and sadly have to confess ignorance as to how that contagion is spread. Until we do know, the situation will get no better, except for the natural fluctuations of the disease.

Public Health Improved

But in spite of rationing and travel restrictions, or perhaps partly because of these necessary impositions, in spite of the tension and temperance of life, in spite of the enormous amount of attention paid to the health of the members of the armed forces our civil population has remained in wonderful health. Infant mortality is down, there is no, or little typhoid, school children diseases are at a minimum and the death rate everywhere in civil life is down.

For all this, due credit should be given to the public health administration, federal, state, county and city, all over the land.

It has been wondered why in this war the Italian troops were not better warriors and the theory has been advanced that they as well as the rest of the Italian population are physically weakened and deteriorated by the inroads of malaria in Italy. The Italian health services have never been particularly distinguished in spite of the fact that some eminent men have held posts in them. A large part of Italy has for years been exposed to malaria, a peculiarly pernicious kind. Experience has shown, according to Dr. Frederick Russell, Professor of Preventive Medicine at Harvard, that repeated infections with malaria in endemic areas, such as Southern and Central Italy, produce a weakened population.

Malaria In Southern Italy

Not only is the health of the community at a low level, but the economic condition of the people is depressed. Much of the Southern Italian population is involved in a vicious circle of disease, undernutrition, poor economic status, poor education and a hopeless outlook for the future. With better public health in Italy the whole course of the Italian war effort might have been different.

There is nothing new about the idea because the degeneration of classical Greece has been universally attributed to the invasion of the country by malaria about the fifth century B. C. The Greeks knew nothing about malaria but today malaria and its control is well understood, and if the Italians had used all the knowledge available they could have controlled the greater part of it, just as it has been done in this country, where malaria used to be endemic all over the Mississippi Valley.

Our health problems are not all solved by any means. With the return of soldiers and sailors some of their incapacities either by injury or disease, some of them in mental states that are far from cooperative, we have a real job to do to get them back into condition so they will be healthy, able and self-respecting with abilities to be self-supporting. All the resources of social medicine will be necessary for the successful accomplishment of this task.

5 Ways Better!

1. NAME YOUR COFFEEPOT!
Do you use a drip pot, percolator, vacuum pot, or plain old-fashioned coffee pot? No matter which, just tell the coffee expert in your A&P store. In the special coffee mill, he will Custom Grind A&P Coffee to the precise fineness required. And . . . that's important, because correct grinding means better flavor in every cup you drink.

2. PICK O' PLANTATIONS
Yes, superb quality coffee, ripened under the tropical sun, is what A&P buyers select at the plantations. Such fine coffee means a full measure of grand flavor.

3. "FLAVOR-SAVER" ROASTED
Ever hear of a machine that "hoarded" flavor? Well, these exclusive A&P roasters do . . . at flavor peak off goes the heat—out rush the coffee beans, packed with flavor.

4. SOLD IN THE BEAN
You know A&P Coffees are fresh 'cause they're still in the roaster's fresh bean when you buy. And coffee that fresh just has to be good!

5. RICHER IN YOUR CUP
First cup to last you'll love coffee that's five ways better. Change now to A&P Coffee—there's a blend to suit your taste.

FOR PERFECT DRIP COFFEE
Have your fresh bean coffee ground A&P DRIP grind—this is exactly right for a drip pot. Measure 2 level table-spoons of coffee for each cup into "dripper". Pour 1 cup of briskly boiling water, for each cup of coffee required, over coffee. Cover, and allow all of coffee to drip into pot. Remove "dripper", cover pot, serve at once.

You Gotta Think Quick

By STANLEY PALEY Copyright, 1944, NEA Service, Inc.

XVI
That night for the first time in years I had a nightmare and dreamed in a cold sweat. In my dream I had been sitting at a table surrounded entirely by mirrors. Then suddenly I'd looked up and there were Boggios around us, each with a gun in his hand. I'd look to the left, and there he was. I'd look to the right, and he was there too. I'd look up and down, and in front of me and behind me. And even on the ceiling and on the floor. He just stood there pointing the gun without saying a word. And I waited and waited and still he didn't move. Until he screamed, "Go on, go on! Get it over with!" And then I realized it was all a dream.
I turned on the light, reached for a cigar, and began thinking. Right now I'd been scared out of my desire for Ginger. But that wasn't last forever. I knew myself and I knew her. Maybe for two or three weeks we'd avoid each other. Then, some day I'd be summoned to the apartment and I'd see her again. That would be hell. What could a fellow do? It was just about when the problem seemed insoluble that an inspiration hit me. I'd go away for awhile. Maybe California.
To my surprise Boggio was far more receptive to my request than I thought he'd be. I'd gone over fully prepared for some stiff sales resistance and instead I found him in an amenable frame of mind. Apparently the pendulum of his mood had swung back again.
I started out by going into an apartment regarding my mental and physical condition. I'd overworked and I was on the verge of a nervous breakdown. When I got started on a subject like that I go into it with such conviction that I almost sell myself.
Boggio sat there and listened. He didn't interrupt once. Just looked at me with a strange expression. Maybe he knew I was putting on an act and was waiting to see how far I'd go. One thing was certain, however. I had been going to court three or four times a week as he had suggested, and I'd bought a typewriter and written reports of the most interesting cases with comments on the verdicts. But instead of writing them up in simple, non-technical language so he could understand them, I had made them as involved as possible. I knew they had impressed him and they gave me the basis for my arguments. I'd knocked them out with relative ease but naturally I explained how I'd burnt the midnight oil and worked myself into a frazzle. After awhile, disconcerted by his silence, I broke off.
"Well?" he said. "Go on!"
"I've spoken my piece, Virgil. And I don't have to be a mind reader to know what you're going to say."
"And what am I going to say?"
"That when you were my age you didn't need any vacations and that I can forget the whole thing."
"That's where you're wrong, Leo. I want you to go."
I was flabbergasted!
"Only I don't know why you want to go to California?" he added.
I couldn't very well tell him that the more miles I put between Ginger and myself, the better it would be for all parties concerned.
"It may sound silly to you," I said, "but I've always wanted to see oranges without a trademark on them, growing on bushes or whatever they grow on. And palm trees."
"What's wrong with Florida?" He had me behind the eight ball. Maybe the whole thing was a trap. Maybe he knew why I wanted to go so far away in such a hurry. Which would also account for his letting me go. Suddenly I had an inspiration.
"I want the long drive," I said.

"And I want to see this country of ours. So far it's only been squares and rectangles on a map. I want to see what it really looks like." Boggio was in an ironical frame of mind. He made a clicking noise with his tongue.
"I should live to see you wave the flag."
"Look, Virgil," I said. "Is there any special reason why you don't want me to go to California?"
He shook his head.
"The only thing I don't want is for you to go too far away from New York. Suppose I need you?"
"I only figure to be gone about six weeks. A week going, a week coming back, and a month there. That isn't long."
He thought it over for a few moments, then shrugged.
"All right," he said. "Go to California. But if you stay one day longer than six weeks I'll give you hell."
"Thanks, Virgil."
"One more thing," he said. "When you get to Hollywood, check in at the Plaza on Vine Street. I may want to get in touch with you, and besides it's a good place."
Boggio knew all the good hotels from here to the Equator.

"Right!" I said. "The Plaza on Vine Street."
"When are you leaving?"
"This afternoon, if I can."
"What's the rush? Running away from a dame?"
That was all that was missing! "Stop kidding, Virgil. There isn't any dame. Only I'm so sick of this damned place that any time I can get out isn't too soon. So long, Virgil." I walked over to the door.
"So long, Leo," he answered. And then, as an afterthought added begrudgingly, "Have a good time!"

Have a Coca-Cola = Going our way?

...or meeting a comrade in Northwest Canada

Friendship comes easy to allies devoted to common causes and borders without guns. Have a "Coke", says the Yank sergeant to the Canadian mountie, and he's talking a lingo of friendship that both understand. That's the informal North American way to say Greetings, friend. It's the same informal way to put friends at ease in your own living room, too. From the Yukon to the Gulf, Coca-Cola stands for the pause that refreshes—a symbol of a friendly way to get along with folks.

Suppose every man, woman and child in this town should be KILLED!

This is a typical American small town, with a population of about 3000.

If every living soul in it should suddenly be struck dead, what a fearful shock it would be to America!

Well, 3283 Americans were struck dead in a single day not so long ago—on just one of the many battlefronts on which we're fighting. But the papers didn't scream with horror. On the contrary—they blazoned forth the good news: "LOSSES LIGHT!"

Maybe the fact that it's good news when only a townful of Americans are wiped out will give you an idea of the gigantic war we're fighting today. Maybe it will help drive home to us the fact that now—right now—we're making the supreme military effort of this whole conflict.

That effort must be matched by the supreme financial effort of the war—at home!

Right now, it's up to us to buy War Bonds as we've never bought them before—and to keep on buying War Bonds until the last vestige of a will to fight has been thoroughly knocked out of every Jap and Nazi!

It will mean sacrifice—certainly. But when American youngsters are dying bloodily by thousands, "sacrifice" is not a word that's ours to use.

And here are 5 more reasons for buying Extra War Bonds!

1. War Bonds are the best, the safest investment in the world!
2. War Bonds return you $4 for every $3 in 10 years.
3. War Bonds help keep prices down.
4. War Bonds will help win the Peace by increasing purchasing power after the War.
5. War Bonds mean education for your children, security for you, funds for retirement.

Buy your invasion bonds today!

Unbeaten, Untied, Unscored On Fitch To Meet Leetonia

Rivals To Clash Saturday In Leetonia In Dream Fray; Blue And White Undefeated

If there ever was a "dream" football game—with all the angles, including rivalry, records, experienced players and the old "will to win"—the Leetonia-Austintown Fitch battle at Leetonia Saturday afternoon is definitely it.

Pitting unbeaten and once tied Leetonia against one of the state's top small school eleven—Coach Ralph Robinson's Fitch crew, boasting an unbeaten, untied and unscored on record in seven starts—the contest is expected to draw one of the largest crowds ever assembled in Leetonia.

With both teams keyed up to the bursting point, tickets selling fast and both coaches rating their teams at "top strength," the game can definitely be marked as one of the outstanding grid attractions in this district this season.

If you think experts are wrong when they rate the Fitchers as one of the state's best, just consider a few facts. Fitch has played and won seven games. In seven starts no team has crossed their goal line. A total of 190 points are on the Fitch side of the ledger against none for their opponents.

That equals an average of 27 points per game which is a lot of credit to the coaching ability of Robinson and the playing ability of his 11 men, of which nine are lettermen from last year.

Leetonia on the other hand, has a record worth crowing about. In seven starts the Blue and White have been victorious six times, though one blemish being a 19-19 first game tie with East Palestine.

Neither team has had a breeze all the way, both have met common foes and both downed difficult opponents. Although the Leetonia squad was tied 19-19 by a fighting Bulldog crew, they came back several weeks later to show their real power by downing Salem, 7-6. This reinstated their authority, as Salem had beaten

East Palestine 20-6 just the week before.

Fitch opened an impressive 6-0 victory over Newton Falls, followed by take Scienceville 13-0, Poland 20-0, Lowellville 20-0, Youngstown Rayen's reserves 46-0, McDonald 46-0 and Brookfield 40-0, last week.

In seven starts, besides tying East Palestine, Leetonia defeated Salem and won over Canfield 38-0, McDonald 41-7, Columbiana 19-6, Goshen 38-0 and Lisbon 47-7. They have piled up 269 points to just 55 for their opposition. This gives them an average of 30 points per game and their opponents just a hair better than seven.

Both coaches say their squads are free of injury (than at any time so far this year) and consequently both will be starting their top starting aggregations. Leetonia has a host of 16 letter winners back this year and the same 11 men that started against Fitch last year. Robinson has nine lettermen back, all of whom played against Leetonia last season when Fitch nosed out a victory 14-7, in the dying seconds of the game.

Both schools will be well represented at the contest, Fitch expecting a large group of followers and nearly all of Leetonia planning to turn out for the game. The entire stand—seating 600—is being reserved.

Ohio-Indiana Game Headlines Big Ten Attractions

BY JIMMY JORDAN

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Those doing at Columbus Saturday between Ohio State and Indiana probably will be tops in Western Conference football this weekend, but there'll be a bit of sideplay at Minneapolis, between Northwestern and Minnesota, that will get more than a passing glance.

Time was when the Wildcats and Gophers settled Conference title arguments in their annual meeting. This time, not even the hope of a title exists as the teams prepare for the fray, but there is little slackening of interest, nevertheless.

May Decide Bottom Spot

In fact, this year's game may decide which of the two is a possible cellar-dweller. Neither has won a league game, but both have showed distinct signs of gathering power in recent weeks.

Last week, Minnesota outgained

Ohio State, but lost primarily because the Gophers have no climax runner like Les Horvath. The week before, Northwestern spotted Indiana two touchdowns in the first half, and then outplayed the Hoosiers consistently in the final two periods, but lost 14-7.

Meanwhile at Columbus, Coach Carroll Widdoes used his bruiser regulars sparingly as the squad worked out defensive problems against Indiana's attack. Coach Bo McMillin sent his Hoosiers through a long drill on offense, with Capt. John Tavenner and Ted Kluszewski getting plenty of practice on placements.

Let's Look Around

On the other midwestern grid fronts: Purdue, which lost six men from its first two backfields through Navy V-12 transfers, worked on new offensive combinations for the Wisconsin game Saturday.... The Badgers had reshuffling to do, too, because of the Navy transfer of End Ed Bahlow and scholastic trouble of Tackle John Schwartz.... Illinois, idle this week, held a long workout as Coach Ray Eliot looked ahead to a Nov. 11 date with Michigan.... Iowa worked on defense for the Nebraska encounter Saturday.... At Ann Arbor, Coach Fritz Crisler began to gear Don Lund and Ralph Chubb into the Michigan offense as replacements for Bob Wiese and Bob Nussbaumer, transferred by the Navy.... Coach Ed McKeever at Notre Dame sent the Ramblers through a scrimmage against Navy plays.... Great Lakes' Bluejackets held a light workout as they prepared for Sunday's game with Marquette.

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

have been emphasized by the present imbroglio immediately give rise to the question whether China can expect to qualify for membership with the Big Three. That's something which we shouldn't answer hastily, pending developments. It depends on China's further attitude.

IT'S PERHAPS unfortunate that Madame Chiang Kai-Shek is ill here in America at the moment of crisis for her country. This brilliant woman—often referred to as "The Brains of China"—long has been her husband's closest political adviser. Indeed she has for years taken an active hand in government, and is reputed to have been at once an inspiration and a steadying influence for the talented but sometimes rash generalissimo.

Madame Chiang's diplomatic touch often has been evident in China's foreign relations. And judging from past events, if she had been in Chungking during recent trying days she would have persuaded her husband to a wiser course.

So far as concerns the war against Japan, the Anglo-American Allies can adapt themselves to existing conditions. Fortunately the Pacific has put us in strategic positions from which we can knock out Nippon. However, perhaps Chiang will remedy his own position.

One of the greatest dangers is that of an upheaval between the Generalissimo's forces and the powerful Chinese Communist armies of north. They've been working under a truce (frequently broken by bloody encounters) because of the Japanese war. I reported these facts in this column after my visit to China last year, and added that the greatest fear of observers in Chungking was that fratricidal war would break out before Japan had been beaten.

These Red armies are one of the generalissimo's chief concerns in his determination to maintain his one-party government. Obviously this political split is highly dangerous to China's war effort. Only last week a cabinet spokesman in Chungking said clashes had occurred during August and September be-he said, until a gentleman from Chicago came in the other day and gave him a certificate of membership.

"What does it entitle you to?" a reporter asked.

The President said he'd have to find out, and laughed when someone pointed out that Rep. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) had said $1,000 club membership cards would let their owners go anywhere in Washington.

Gov. Thomas E. Dewey asserted recently the club was formed to "sell special privilege" to those willing to put $1,000 into the Democratic campaign. Subsequently Frank J. Lewis of Chicago, the club's national chairman, said the organization was non-partisan.

dent credited to New Deal sponsorship. Asserting that his Democratic opponent appeared to be taking some of his ideas from the speeches Dewey had delivered earlier in the campaign, the New York governor said: "My opponent has now read our platform and is saying 'me too'." Even the New Deal knows that it's time for a change. No, we cannot live on promises. We must have performance this time—before it's too late.

Dewey outlined eight proposals he said the Republicans would put into effect, if victorious.

Briefly, these pledged direction of government policies toward "full employment," adoption of a new tax system, expansion of social security, establishment of a floor under farm prices, merging of labor control agencies, abolition of many government reports required from business, prosecution of business monopoly by a "competent staff" in the department of justice, and establishment of a new basis of relations between the President and Congress.

Lady Nearly Choked While Lying In Bed—Due to Stomach Gas

One lady said a few days ago that she used to be afraid to go to bed at night. She was swollen with stomach gas, which always got worse when she went to bed, and the gas would rise up in her throat after she lay down and would nearly choke her. She couldn't lie flat. Had to prop herself up on pillows. Recently this lady got ERB-HELP and now says gas is gone, stomach feels fine, bowels are regular and she can go to bed and sleep soundly.

ERB-HELP contains 12 Great Herbs; they cleanse bowels, clear gas from stomach, act on sluggish liver and kidneys. Miserable people soon feel different all over. So don't go on suffering! Get ERB-HELP. Lease Drug Stores, State and Lincoln Sts.

COUNTY TREASURER:

1. 7 years deputy treasurer.
2. 1 year acting treasurer.
3. 12 years banking experience.
4. I have been in the office at Lisbon during office hours working with you and for you at all times.
5. I do not represent any private firm during business with your county.

I quote from Editorial published in Salem News, Aug. 1, 1944: "MR. JUDGE WAS WELL QUALIFIED by financial training when he was selected by Mr. Dawson to be his deputy at the beginning of his first term. Since then he has justified the treasurer's faith in his ability many times. The team of Dawson and Judge in the treasurer's office has been hard to beat, go back as many years as you like. Affairs of the county treasurer's office are thus in safe hands at least until the election in November."

The treasurer handles over $3,500,000 of taxpayers' money annually.
